Sesquicentenary celebrations 150 Years of Education

On Friday 17th October we celebrated 150 years of education with a celebration cake, cut by the current School Secondary and Primary Captains. Members of the public were able to view a display in the hall with a variety of memorabilia spanning several years, even centuries. Students and their families participated in a colour run, which was immensely enjoyed by everyone involved.

On Friday night, the P&C hosted a dinner in the Emmaville Memorial Hall where members of the community listened to guest speakers Justine Martin and Nancy Hobson, both former students of Emmaville Central School, who spoke about their time attending school and how life was when they lived in Emmaville.

Nancy told of the time when they went on an excursion to Inverell, but instead of travelling on a bus, the students were transported on a truck with covered in sides and wooden seats on the tray of the truck. Imagine the ride! Justine still has her merit certificates she received from her primary years and the friendships formed and she still, to this day, keeps in contact with her classmates.

There was also lots of reminiscing amongst guests sharing their tales of school as either past students or staff members. Mrs Christine King, the canteen manager of 30 years was invited to help cut the cake on the night.

Please enjoy these photos of our celebrations!
